The Drawing Game where everybody makes a scene!

U Games Australia is proud to have launched what is being touted as 'Absolutely hilarious...the BEST drawing game ever made!'* edplay magazine.

Who? What? Where? is the outrageous drawing game where everyone 'makes a scene.' To play, grab a Who card, a What card and a Where card, and then try to draw the ridiculous scene as best you can

You might get...

- Bill Gates sumo wrestling in a trailer park
- Harry Potter pole vaulting in a zoo
- Prince Charles Ballet Dancing in Egypt
- Britney Spears riding a pogo stick in a maternity ward

...plus thousands of other wonderfully wild combinations.

The object of the game is to try to get the other players to guess the Who, the What and the Where in the scene you have drawn.

Can't draw? Have no fear! Stick people are allowed. Think of what would make the other players guess it was Britney Spears a stick figure, holding a microphone with long hair and dress her in a crop top and mini skirt. Put her on a pogo stick and draw cradles with stick babies and a stick nurse and there you have it – Britney Spears on a pogo stick in a maternity ward.

Players then pass their creations onto everyone else who all try to guess what the artist drew – the answers can be hilarious! For each correct part of the answer (Who, What and Where) the player guessing gets a point as well as the drawer – up to 3 points for each drawing.

The person with the most points at the end is the winner! So even if you can't draw you can still win by guessing everyone else's drawings!
